

Image description: dark blue header with the UCL initials and logo (small white university building).

Words read: IOE - Faculty of Education

Do you work with young people with vision impairment?

Are you a parent of a young person with vision impairment?

My name is Grace and I am a master's student in Educational Psychology at University College London's Institute of Education.

How can you help?

I am carrying out interviews to find out more about the educational experiences and mental health of young people with vision impairment (YPVI). I am eager to speak to a range of people who parent or have experience working with YPVI aged 11-25.

Why is this is important?

This is an under-researched area that could really benefit from the voices of those who know young people with vision impairment and hear their perspectives. If you think you might have an insight I would be very happy to hear from you!

If you are interested, please email:

grace.sayers-mcgowan.23@ucl.ac.uk